

General Data Protection Regulation (AVG)

From 25 May 2018, the AVG is in force and that has consequences for dealing with personal data.

Record personal data

We record personal data necessary for the execution of our work. That means that of everyone who made a donation to our Foundation Marypages we have stored his / her email address and address details (if this is specified in the donation). In addition to the address details, if that information is known to us, we have also stored the bank details.

We do not record special characteristics. We do realize that religion is an important fact for our subscribers. Although we do not record this, there is an indirectly special feature.

We also record the personal data of our debtors and creditors, this data is recorded in our financial system.

We have also recorded personal data in a database of people who support us financially (donators) of people who have given us permission (this in accordance with SEPA) and persons who have signed with us a Periodic Gift Agreement in cash.

We expressly declare that we do not record any data that is not immediately necessary for the execution of the work in question.

Privacy rights

Under the AVG a number of rights are described, whereby the 'right to forget' and the 'right to data portability' are actually new rights. If someone wishes to make use of this on the basis of the rights that apply within AVG, then it is useful to do so via info@marypages.com.

The AVG privacy rights

- The right to data portability. The right to transfer personal data (NEW).
- The right to forgetfulness. The right to be 'forgotten' (NEW).
- Right of access. That is the right of people to see the personal data that you process from them.
- Right to rectification and supplementation. The right to change the personal data you process.
- The right to limit processing: The right to have less data processed.
- The right with regard to automated decision-making and profiling. In other words: the right to a human look at decisions.
- The right to object to data processing.
